Black Widow® Introduces Aluminum Shore Dock for Jet Skis*Manual winch pulls personal watercraft up to 1,200 lbs.*

GERMANTOWN, WI – June 2, 2021 – Black Widow, manufacturer of quality, affordable utility products for the powersports market, introduces the Black Widow Personal Watercraft Shore Dock and Extension Kit that turns any shallow or tidal body of water into a place to dock a jet ski or personal watercraft up to 1,200 pounds. The Shore Dock is available with or without a 5' dock extension to accommodate varied shore lengths. The extension is also available separately.

The 11' 5" long Black Widow Shore Dock (PWC-RAMP) is manufactured from high-strength, lightweight aluminum with stainless steel hardware. Designed to be partially submerged, the corrosion-resistant design withstands fresh or saltwater use. The PWC-RAMP has eight angled rollers per side, two end rollers, and a rubber guide wheel to reduce friction while the jet ski is in motion and protect the hull from scratching against the dock. The three-foot-wide feet dig into the shore to stabilize the dock and brace it during loading and unloading.

The dock operates with a manual winch that gradually winds a thick webbed strap and hook. The hook connects to the jet ski bow eye or soft loop strap (not included). During assembly, the winch beam has four adjustable positions to compensate for different shore heights. At its lowest position, the beam brings the total length of the shore dock to 14' 5".

The 5' long Black Widow Shore Dock Extension (PWC-EXT) is an optional addition and increases the length of the dock for shorelines that are particularly shallow. Four additional rollers per side keep loading smooth. It installs easily along the center dock beam and seven height positions set during assembly for enhanced stabilization on the shoreline.
